Dear Sir or Madam:

I was informed that the FCC has introduced a new broadcast service, known as Low Power FM (KPFM). The FCC is proposing to allow new LPFM stations to take priority over current FM translator service. I am in San Jose, CA and I listen to both 91.9FM and 99.3FM for K-LOVE all the time. I've been listening to K-LOVE for about 10 years now. The songs that K-LOVE plays has been a great encouraging for me for the last 10 years. Personally, I also financially support K-LOVE. If K-LOVE disappears because this new proposal from FCC, I will loose the daily encouragement and inspiration from K-LOVE. K-LOVE's music and service is focusing on encouraging and motivating new generation to do good and make themselves useful for the society. Many testimonies that I hear about people that are encouraged and reminded while they are in great distress, like using drugs, or feel depressed, or in sickness. People get encouragements in their great distress. I hope the FCC's proposal is designed to help the society, not removing great programs from the society.

Please reconsider the proposal so that good FM stations, like K-LOVE, which offer to the society so much, can be guaranteed to exist as long as it lasts.

Sincerely,

Lean Wang
